Download Article Download Article This wikiHow teaches you how to enter your Windows product key and activate Windows on your computer. Product activation tells Microsoft's servers that you have purchased a legitimate license.[1] On Windows 11 and 10, failure to activate Windows will limit your ability to personalize your machine, as well as give a scarlet letter of shame reminding you to Activate Windows. On older versions, it might limit your ability to personalize, give you activation prompts several times, disable Windows updates, or even prevent you from logging on. If you haven't purchased the full version of Windows, you can buy it from the online store. Go to "Settings" on your computer, followed by "Updates & Security" and "Activation."Select "Change product key" and input your 25-digit product key.Keep your device connected to the internet as the activation completes.1Open the Settings app on your computer. You can find it on your Start menu, or use the search or Cortana button on your taskbar to quickly open it.[2] 2Select Updates & Security. This option looks like two rotating arrows on the Settings menu.[3] Advertisement 3Click Activation on the left menu. This will open your product activation options on the right-hand side.[4]4Click Change product key. This will allow you to enter your 25-digit product key to activate Windows on your computer.[5][6]If you haven't purchased the full version of Windows yet, you can click Go to Store here, and purchase the full version from the online Windows Store.5Enter your product key to activate. Type in your 25-digit product key, and click Activate to fully activate all of Windows's features on your computer.[7][8]You can find your product key in an email from whoever sold or distributed Windows to you.If you installed your system from an official Windows USB, you can find your product key on the box the USB came in.6Remain connected to the Internet. To ensure that your product key has not been used on another device, you must remain connected to the Internet. If you do not have an Internet connection, you can activate over the phone. Advertisement This can be used if you are activating an unsupported version of Windows or if you do not have an Internet connection.1Press Win+R. Type in slui 4.[9]2Choose a language. Click on Next.[10]3Call the toll free number on-screen. This will connect you to the Microsoft activation center.[11]4Dial the CAPTCHA number provided. As a measure against spam, only human callers are allowed to proceed to activate Windows. 5Enter the unique installation ID using the phone keypad. To do this, you will have to enter one group at a time. Each group is separated by spaces.6Click on Next.7Enter in the confirmation ID on your computer. Then choose Activate Windows. This will finish activation. Advertisement Ask a Question Advertisement This article was co-authored by Michael Thompson-Brown. If youre looking to activate Windows 10, its easier than you might think. This step-by-step guide will walk you through the process quickly and efficiently. By the end, youll have an activated and fully functional Windows 10 operating system. Activating Windows 10 ensures that you have a genuine copy of the operating system, which gives you access to updates and features from Microsoft. Heres how you can do it in a few simple steps. To get started, click on the Start menu and select the Settings gear icon. Opening the Settings menu is the first step to accessing the activation options. You can also use the shortcut Windows + I to open Settings directly. In the Settings menu, find and click on Update & Security. This section contains all the options related to updating your system, as well as the activation status of your Windows 10 installation. Within the Update & Security menu, click on the Activation tab on the left-hand side. The Activation tab will show you the current activation status of your Windows 10. If your Windows is not activated, youll see options to enter a product key or troubleshoot. Press the Change product key button and enter the 25-character product key. Make sure you enter the product key carefully. Its a combination of numbers and letters and can usually be found on the packaging of your Windows 10 purchase or in the confirmation email if you bought it online. Click Next and then Activate to complete the process. Windows will now verify your product key with Microsofts servers. If the key is valid, Windows 10 will be activated. Once you complete these steps, your Windows 10 will be activated. This allows you to access all features and receive important updates. Check Your Internet Connection: Make sure you have a stable internet connection to verify your product key. Keep Your Product Key Handy: Store your product key in a safe place for future reference. Use Microsoft Account: Linking your Windows 10 activation to your Microsoft account makes it easier to reactivate. Troubleshooting: Use the Troubleshoot option if you face issues during activation. OEM Keys: If pre-installed, your device might have an OEM key. Check your computers box or documentation. Without activation, youll see a watermark and lose some personalization features. Updates can still be received, but some essential ones might be restricted. No, a product key can only be used on one device, unless its a volume license key. Double-check the key for any typing errors. If it still doesnt work, contact Microsoft Support. Check the original packaging or confirmation email. If Windows was pre-installed, the key might be on a sticker on your device. You can use Windows 10 without a key, but it wont be activated, limiting some features and displaying a watermark. Open Settings Go to Update & Security Click on Activation Enter Product Key Activate Activating Windows 10 is a crucial step for anyone who wants to make the most of their operating system. Not only does it unlock all the features, but it also ensures you receive all essential updates from Microsoft. These steps are straightforward and user-friendly, so even if youre not tech-savvy, you can get it done without breaking a sweat. Remember, keeping your product key safe and your system updated are small but essential parts of maintaining your computer. If you encounter any issues, dont hesitate to use the troubleshooting option or reach out to Microsoft Support.
