American founder of an alternative medicine multi-level marketing company (1949-2018) D. Gary YoungBorn(1949-07-11)July 11, 1949Idaho, USDiedMay 12, 2018(2018-05-12) (aged 68)Salt Lake City, Utah, USOccupationFormer CEO of Young LivingWebsitewww.dgaryyoung.com Donald Gary Young (July 11, 1949 – May 12, 2018) was an American businessman specializing in essential oils and alternative medicine. He was the founder and chief executive officer (CEO) of Young Living, a Utah-based multi-level marketing company that sells essential oils and dietary supplements. Early in his career, Young pleaded guilty to the unlicensed practice of medicine, and his company has faced several government investigations. Young was born on July 11, 1949, into a poor ranching family in Idaho Falls, Idaho.[1] The family's small cabin home had no running water or electricity.[2] His parents were Donald Norman Young and Dolly Adrienne Parsons.[3] The second oldest of six living children (one sister died as an infant),[4] Young grew up in a Mormon household[1] and attended high school in Challis, Idaho.[5] After graduating, in 1967, he briefly worked for the US Forest Service[1] and then moved to Canada with the intention of homesteading in British Columbia.[6] By Young's account, at the age of 24, he suffered a near-fatal logging accident, and had to use a wheelchair for a time, and he further claimed that while rehabilitating, he began to experiment with essential oils.[7][8] According to Young's wife, he tried to kill himself three times while recovering from the accident.[11] According to Business Insider, in December 1973, "after completing a home-study course in nutrition and herbology, he went back to work as a part-time trucker in British Columbia and pursued odd jobs over the next few years", hauling cargo and working on a pipeline in Fairbanks, Alaska.[11] In 1979, Young enrolled at the Burroughs Vita-Flex Institute, "an unaccredited school dedicated to the teachings of Stanley Burroughs".[11] From 1979 to 1981, Young attended Donsbach Nutrition University, an unaccredited school in Huntington Beach, California[11] operated by Kurt Donsbach, an unlicensed chiropractor. In 1980, Young enrolled in a therapeutic massage program at the "American Institute of Physiogenerology"; however, according to the institute's founder, Young left after attending only a few classes, including depression and cancer.[10] In 2004, the Utah Attorney General charged a clinic employee with practicing medicine without a license for conducting diagnostic tests and prescribing products to patients at Young's clinic between 2000 and 2002.[15] The clinic had also employed a pediatrician whose medical license had previously been suspended by the state medical board following a manslaughter conviction in connection with the improper treatment and death of a cancer patient under his care.[10][16][17] In 2005, the clinic settled a lawsuit with a patient who claimed that they were given infusions of vitamin C that caused near-fatal kidney failure.[10] Young then closed the Utah clinic and opened a new one (Nova Vita Medical Clinic) in Guayaquil, Ecuador.[8][10] Main article: Young Living In 1993, Young and his third wife, Mary, founded Young Living Essential Oils in Riverton, Utah, later moving the company to Lehi, Utah.[13][18] As of 2017, Young Living was reported to have become one of the largest vendors of essential oils in the United States with over three million customers.[10] Young stepped down as CEO in 2015, and his third wife, Mary Young, assumed the role.[19] The company has faced complaints and lawsuits, including safety violations following an inspection into an employee death in 2000, reports to the FDA of adverse product reactions from 2013 to 2014,[20] federal misdemeanor charges after voluntary disclosing illegal trafficking of certain oils in 2017, and a proposed class-action lawsuit alleging that the company is an unlawful pyramid scheme in 2019.[11] Young married Donna Jean Young on October 2, 1968.[1][21] In 1982, Young and Donna Jean attempted to give birth to a daughter to be named Rachel in a whirlpool bath located in Young's "health club", but the child died following the delivery.[11][9][22][23] According to the Spokane county coroner, the child, who was born normal and healthy, died due to oxygen deprivation and would have survived if a hospital delivery had been performed.[10][22] No criminal charges resulted from the death, but it prompted an investigation into Young's practices.[9] They divorced on September 14, 1983.[24] Young's second wife was named Dixie.[25] In 1994, Young married his third wife, Mary, a trained opera singer.[26] In addition to his eight children from prior marriages, Gary had two sons with Mary: Jacob and Josef.[1][27] Young died on May 12, 2018, in Salt Lake City[28] His wife Mary announced Young had died due to complications from a series of strokes; however, Young's son Shawn stated that his father had died due to cancer.[11] Young authored several self-published books on essential oils and other health-related topics including: Young, D.
