In this lesson, we will learn to use verbs in the imperative tense for making classroom commands in Spanish and giving instructions in the class. You will listen to the examples of things the teacher would say in the Spanish class and practice with quizzes. Lets begin We will begin this lesson with a short video showing 10 basic verbs that are often used in the classroomfor classroom commands and instructions in Spanish Mandatos/Instrucciones. This video includes pictures representing each verb and a few important notes on how to use them. You can activate the captions in English (cc) below. Dont worry if you cannot understand everything, as we will explain more details later. As shown in the video, verbs like HABLAR, ESCRIBIR, LEER and ESCUCHAR are really common when communicating with your teacher or classmates in Spanish. Particularly for the classroom, these verbs will be used in the imperative in Spanish, a tense that is used to give orders or express wishes. The imperative will only beused for pronouns in the second person such asT, USTED, VOS, VOSOTROS, USTEDES. The chart below shows how to form the imperative in Spanish of regular verbs. Notice that each verb in infinitive has a different ending (AR, ER, IR). The chart shows that Hablar will change to Habla for the pronoun T, e.g. T habla primero (You speak first!). PronounHABLAR (to talk)ESCRIBIR (to write)LEER (to read)THablaEscribeLeeUstedHableEscribaLeaVosHablEscribLeVosotrosHabladEscribidLeedUstedesHablenEscribanLean Most of the time, instructions and classroom commands in Spanish will begin with a verb in imperative. This means that when giving instructions like Open your book , the teacher will not say Ustedes abren sus libros (regular conjugation of ABRIR) but (Ustedes) abran sus libros.It is not necessary to add USTEDES before Abran and actually we will omit it most of the time. Teachers will frequently use the imperative for the pronoun USTEDES (you) to refer to the whole class. In books, you will probably see the imperative form for the pronoun USTED so instead of (Ustedes)Completen el ejercicio, as the teacher would indicate inclass,you books instructions in Spanish will likely say (Usted)Complete el ejercicio. In most cases, Spanish commands and instructions will include these verbs:ABRIR (to open), SELECCIONAR (to choose), ESCUCHAR (to listen), MIRAR (to look), COMPLETAR (to complete), LEER (to read), CORREGIR (to correct), RELLENAR (to fill in), BUSCAR (to look up/to find), HABLAR (to talk), LEER (to read), PLANEAR (to plan), DISCUTIR (to discuss), ESCRIBIR (to write), RESPONDER (to answer) and PRACTICAR (to practice). All these verbs will change their ending according to the chart presented above, except for CORREGIR that will change to CORRIJA(N) and PRACTICAR to PRACTIQUE(N). Abran sus libros en la pgina 30Open your books on page 30 Seleccionen la respuesta correcta para las siguientes preguntasChoose the right answer for the following questions Escuche una conversacin entre dos personas y luego responda las preguntas sobre ella.Listen to a conversation between two friends and then answer the questions about it. Hable sobre sus vacaciones de verano.Talk about your summer vacations Lean la historia y escriban un resumen de tres prrafosRead the story and write a 3 paragraph summary Tarea: Practique la pronunciacin de la letra rHomework: Practice the pronunciation of the letter r As we explained in the lesson, the imperative is the basis for instructions and Spanish classroom commands. The imperative for regular verbs is not that difficult to remember with some practice because the pattern is somewhat predictable. However, not all the verbs in the language follow rules. That being said, you will find Spanish irregular verbs in the imperative mood, such as Vaya (You go), Ven (You come) and Sea (Be). This topic is really interesting, so we will continue learning about it in future lessons. Before you leave, please test yourself and practice the imperative in Spanish classroom commands and instructions with this short quiz.
